

For Such A Time As This

Disclaimer: this is an automatically generated machine transcription - there may be small errors or mistranscriptions. Please refer to the original audio if you are in any doubt.

Date: 02 September 2022

Preacher: Jon Watson

[0 : 0 0] The 2nd of September. For such a time as this. And who knows whether you have not come to the kingdom for such a time as this. Esther 4, 14.

Do you like a good story? Yes? Well, the book of Esther has all the ingredients of a good story. A beautiful and brave heroine. A romance. An evil villain who gets his just desserts.

An obscure good man who gets a great honor. All played out in an exotic Persian palace and its surroundings. Strangely enough, for a Bible book, there is no mention of God.

Yet the providence of God is everywhere in the story. By providence, we mean God's gracious working out of his purposes. So that all events that happen are made to bring about what gives glory to God and ultimate good for people.

Especially all who have their trust in him. That is the great lesson the book of Esther teaches. Yet God uses people to fulfill his purposes. Not as robots, but as free agents who know and are responsible for what they are doing.

[1 : 0 9] This was why Esther's cousin, or uncle, Mordecai, challenged Esther to be brave and plead with the Persian king to save the Jewish people when they were in danger of being completely destroyed.

Esther, a Jew, was the queen of the Persian king at that time. And she was in danger of being killed, along with all the other Jews. But Esther used her position to get the king's help to save the Jews.

She had come to the kingdom for just such a time. And she did not fail. And a prayer. Dear Lord, as I salute Esther's bravery, I also ask for your help to make me brave when challenged about my faith in Christ.

Amen. Amen. Thank you.